

The National Employment Services Association (NESA), who we are:

The National Employment Services Association (NESA) is the peak body for all Providers of Australian Government Employment Services. NESA's members work with jobseekers and employers to assist people into work.

NESA was established in 1997. NESA is the voice of the employment services industry and as such represents and works to advance the development and improvement of the industry across Australia.

NESA works with Government, employers and others for improved provision of services to Australian jobseekers, particularly those who are facing challenges in finding work, and those seeking to join the workforce or increase their participation in work after an absence from work, such as parents returning to the workforce, mature aged jobseekers, people with disabilities, and many others.

NESA members are comprised of both for profit and not for profit organisations who provide a wide range of government contracted employment services including Job Network, Community Work Coordinator/ Work for the Dole, Personal Support Programme, Disability Employment Network, Jobs Pathway Employment and Training (JPET), New Enterprise Incentive Scheme (NEIS) and Indigenous Employment Services as well as fee for service activities. Many of NESA's members are also Registered Training Organisations.
